

Families sometimes don't know us best. Sometimes, they think we're just like we were when we were younger. But that's not true! Or is it? What do you think?

Color That Stuff

Here are two types of families. Color the pictures then draw one of your own!

Jesus was getting famous. People heard about his amazing teaching. People knew about how he could heal people, and chase away evil spirits. Everyone who heard about Jesus was amazed!

Then Jesus went back home. The people there weren't so amazed.

"I've known Jesus since he was a little boy," said a woman. "Where did he get these powers? They must be evil."

A man said, "It scares me. He must be crazy!"

"Jesus," said another woman, "your mother and brothers are looking for you. They're really worried."

Jesus shook his head. "I understand. But God has big plans for me now. My job is to teach and heal and love people no matter what. Everyone who loves me is my mother or my sister or my brother. I belong to all people now."

Jesus' Big Plans

It was hard for Jesus' family to understand him. He would change the world!

Spot the Differences

Spot the differences between the two pictures. How many are there? Then, count how many types of animals or families you see in the pictures.

Try It At Home

This week, make a schedule for yourself of things you'll do each day. Is it easy to plan? What happen when plans change?

Ask a parent or other guardian you trust to show you pictures of them when they were growing up. Did people used to wear funny clothes? How do you think you'd dress if you'd been born during that time?
